Introduction

Cathy Huang holds an LL.M. from the Graduate Institute of Interdisciplinary Legal Studies at National Taiwan University and a B.A. in Economics from National Chengchi University, equipping her with a robust foundation in both legal and economic disciplines.

Cathy possesses extensive experience in both civil and criminal litigation. Her practice spans a diverse range of cases, including various contractual disputes, employment and labor relations, corporate legal advisory, and non-contentious legal services. She approaches each case with meticulous care and a pragmatic, solution-oriented mindset, empowering her clients to take control and gain strategic advantages in negotiations and litigation amid complex disputes.

Cathy is committed to delivering legally sound and commercially viable advice. She enthusiastically and tirelessly assists her clients in identifying latent legal risks, strengthening their negotiating leverage, enhancing their bargaining position, and effectively addressing various disputes with confidence. Her enthusiastic and hardworking attitude fosters long-term, trustworthy relationships with her clients.

Representative Matters:

- Trademark Infringement Litigation: Cathy successfully defended the rights and interests of a trademark owner in a franchise dispute by employing a fact-based advocacy strategy that effectively dispelled common misconceptions about franchisees.
- Employment Dispute Resolution: She smoothly facilitated favorable settlements in multiple labor-management mediations across various counties and cities nationwide, balancing the interests of both employers and employees while fulfilling her clients' expectations and promoting procedural efficiency.
- Civil Litigation Against a Family Business Executive: Cathy strategically reversed her client's unfavorable position in a high-stakes civil litigation against a family business executive. By tactically highlighting critical evidence through an exhaustive review of evidence, she successfully persuaded the court to award her client damages against the opposing party in an amount exceeding NTD 10 million.
